Neus is a 15-year-old girl from Mallorca, a Spanish island located in the Mediterranean. She lives in a small and quiet town with her mother and father and 18-year-old sister. She is very close to her family and likes to say that she gets her good sense of humor from her father, the desire to travel from her mother, and how to be a good confidant from her sister.

Neus loves to travel because she loves to learn about different cultures. She is very excited about this exchange program because she says there is no better way to learn about a country and its language than to immerse oneself into its culture. Neus also has a special attraction to the United States! She has visited several places here such as California, Las Vegas, Florida and NYC. Neus also wants to be part of the program so she can have a good relationship with her host family similar to her relationship she has with her parents. She believes the secret to a good relationship is truth and respect.

Neus attends an academic school, called les Can Peu Blanc, where she is an excellent student, especially the sciences. But she believes her calling is in Psychology because she loves to study the human mind and learn what makes it function. She enjoys reading as well as listening to music, and has done inline skating and running sports for many years. One of her favorite hobbies is photography. She has studied English for ten years and has recently taken up German. Her teachers describe her as an attentive and conscientious student. She has a desire to succeed and is competitive.

Neus is a very cheerful, open and friendly person and she has the capacity to learn from every situation. Her social and intellectual skills as well as her personal and academic attitudes make her an ideal candidate for this experience.
